Why Collaborate?

If you think collaboration is just a buzzword, think again. Collaboration in business is about being competitive, it's about being innovative, and more importantly, in today's global environment, it's about survival. In a time of evolutionary competition among companies for bright ideas, great products and new marketplaces, a collaborative culture will prevail over organizations where the functional silos gene is both dominant & restrictive. The social networking revolution have created a whole new platform and tools that can be harnessed by your enterprise to transform the way you do business.

Signs you need an Enterprise Social Collaboration Platform

Email Overload
You spend 28% or more of your work time managing emails.

No time to be Creative
You can hardly spend more than 8 hours a week on issues that demand out of the box thinking, the rest is admin, management and finding information.

Always on the Lookout for the right things
You spend 19% or more of your work time searching for and gathering information i.e. going through folders, emails and file servers.

Brain Drain
Key outcomes of hour long and nail biting brainstorming sessions are often lost, with no way of locating key points.

Contacting the Contractor
Governance polices make it difficult to quickly bring contractors up to speed and productive.

Whom to Approach?
You find it too difficult to find the right people with relevant knowledge.

Keeping the Ball Rolling
You find it ridiculously slow trying to get others to contribute to proposals and projects, yet you know they have relevant inputs.

Staying Connected
Your workforce on the move finds it difficult to share and access important marketing collateral often lengthening the sales cycle or result in losing key business.

System Overload
Having to navigate through different windows and Apps to find documents, comments and approvals that you need.

Hazy Vision
Team members often complain of unclear visibility on upcoming project tasks and deliverables because they are distributed across fileservers, emails and project management tools.

Why SocialXtend?

A Better Way to Engage and Collaborate

Directly connect and engage with team members and coworkers both in and outside your organization. Discover relevant workspaces, set up groups in seconds, send messages, post updates, network with and follow people, track conversations, organize meetings and share project timelines and receive instant feedback.

Window to Your Enterprise

Get an aggregated view of everything in and around your workplace, all in one place; from important company announcements and recent updates from your peers and connections to links to project workspaces and personalized communities; all at your fingertips.

Unified Communication

Tight integration with Microsoft business applications, such as Lync, enables real-time, two-way communication between individuals and groups, helping you stay informed and move projects forward without clogging up your inbox.

Intranet to Intelligent Workspaces

Organize your work into distinct workspaces and get real- time, instant notifications on things that matter. See tasks that need your attention, stay up to date and take action if required. Centrally store all your files and documents by title, size, date within groups and communities. Co-author with colleagues, discuss feedback and revisions, and save them in a central, easily accessible location, minimizing time and effort in looking for information that matters.
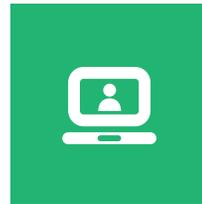

Governance that Works

Easily add or remove users individually or in bulk, automatically synchronize user data from your existing company directory to standardize user information and enable single sign-on to simplify user access.

Anywhere. Anytime. Any Device Access

Unlock the potential of anytime, anywhere access from any device, whether you're in Hong Kong or Des Moines. Connect, communicate, share and collaborate from your smartphone or tablet and enjoy direct, smooth, real-time access when and where you need it.

From SharePoint to Enterprise Collaboration

Built on the robust foundation of Microsoft SharePoint, SocialXtend enables you to feel the pulse of your organization. Intuitive, scalable and easy to configure, it taps into capabilities like social networking, and real-time communication, among others, to offer a friendlier, better and progressive way to work together.

SocialXtend allows organizations to eliminate information silos, enabling employees across the enterprise to share knowledge, innovative ideas, and expert opinions to deliver superior business performance. Because of its close integration with SharePoint, SocialXtend provides native level integration support with products such as MS Outlook and MS Unified Communication, giving you a lower total cost of ownership.
